Challenge Facility for Civil Society

Strengthening Communities to Save Lives

The Challenge Facility for Civil Society (CFCS) – is a catalytic funding mechanism, that strengthens the capacity of community actors - ensuring they provide services, drive advocacy, shape policies, and demand access to quality TB prevention, diagnosis, treatment and care. By fostering resilient community systems and strengthening partnerships with health systems, CFCS plays a crucial role in finding the missing people with TB - those undiagnosed or unreached by health services, so they can access lifesaving care

CFCS Round 12 is supporting 38 countries

- 6 EECA countries:

Azerbaijan, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan,
Tajikistan, Ukraine, Uzbekistan

CFCS is funded by the US Government and L'Initiative/Expertise France

CFCS Interventions

CFCS partners work in collaboration with NTPs to advance three pillars of life-saving interventions:

- Pillar 1: Interventions that save sick people's lives through prompt diagnosis and effective treatment
- Pillar 2: Interventions that improve access/remove barriers to TB care and prevention services
- Pillar 3: Interventions that save lives by preventing TB infection from progressing to TB disease

CFCS Outcomes

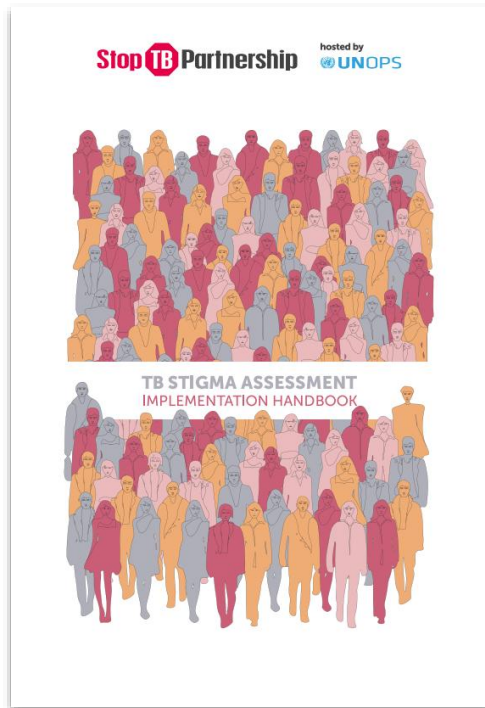

- Reaching the unreached—identifying and supporting people affected by TB who would otherwise remain invisible to the formal health system.
- Strengthening community systems—generating local data and evidence to uncover systemic gaps in the TB response, advocate for change, and hold duty-bearers accountable.

Together, these approaches ensure that no one is left behind in the fight to end TB.
